As Washington, D.C continues to develop into the urban center that is our nation's capital, it has become necessary to cement the legal foundations of the municipal government. That is why, with the help of Deputy Mayor Tankslayer10, I have proposed a charter to Congress that will make the D.C. municipal government official and autonomous to the federal government. With legal authority similar to the Las Vegas municipal government, D.C. will be able to develop our municipal departments, services, and developer relations in a way that will ensure future growth for our metropolitan area.

To clarify, this does not restrict the federal government's authority in D.C. Article IV of the Constitution gives the federal government the authority to directly control their property (such as the White House), and this charter does not change the fact that federal law holds greater authority than municipal law. What the charter accomplishes is that it establishes a government that can directly serve the needs of D.C. and the American people who visit, work, and participate in our city.

Thank you,

Technozo
